Kebab and tanga pulut ayam; porridge of prawns, crabs and chicken; noodles; potato puffs, saffron-flavoured eggplant crisps, cumin-spiced 'hargisi kofta' and more. Or maybe you'd like to try a taste of the country in a more traditional way, either by sampling the local food or even visiting some of the local markets. Without further ado, here's a list of all the places you'll find either in town or in surrounding towns. Doug Sell: Tennessee needs better taxes. By DOUG SELL. Published June 24, 2006 Markets have had a good go of it recently. In the last few weeks the Dow Jones Industrial Average has climbed higher than 1,000 points and wiped out the losses of the past two years. Investors seem to have regained confidence after the "tech crash" of the 1990s. What's different about this recent bull market? While there are many possible answers, one might be the improvement in taxes. We have had a more favorable overall tax structure since the turn of the century. Sales and use taxes have been on the rise, while property tax rates have declined and the state and local exemption has grown. The truth is that Tennessee's sales tax is actually still below the national average. Tennessee's largest cities have added sales taxes, so a good comparison is to look at the Southeastern Conference. The Southeast, as a whole, has an average sales tax of 8.0 percent. Tennessee, however, has an average sales tax of 6.65 percent. A current example of our lower state sales tax is groceries. Federal law requires grocery stores to charge 6.50 percent for sales tax. Tennessee currently charges 5.10 percent. The difference in tax should not be a factor for consumers. It is important to remember that Tennessee's state and local tax is the largest source of revenue for our state. It's also one of the most pro-business. The state and local tax has a very high exemption level, currently at $30,000 for individuals and $50,000 for married couples. The state's property tax, in 82157476af
